W. F. Prisk, editor of the Long Beach (Calif.) Press-Telegram, says:

"Did you ever stop to think that advertising makes the balanced newspaper?"

"Advertising balances the newspaper by acquainting readers with the latest developments in the markets as well as the latest happenings in Washington, in London, in Moscow, in the State Capital, in county seat and the home town. The housewife is interested in what the food stores are offering today, in what the department stores have to say about the progress of fashions as displayed in the 'show windows' of the advertising pages. Even the classified columns have their human interest stories."

"Because of this all-around service, the newspaper is the dominating advertising medium."

"Because advertising is as current as news—or should be—advertisers find the newspaper the most productive agency as measured by actual results. It is the dependable, day-by-day voice-piece of changes and bargains in the merchandising program."

"To achieve the best results, to be sure, advertising in newspapers must be attractive, newsy, consistent, truthful."

MISSOURI GAME AND FISH NEWS

There were estimated to be six thousand fewer trout of catchable size in the spring branch at Roaring River State Park, south of Cassville, at nightfall March first, the opening day of the season, according to Park Keeper Hugh Brixey. The crowd was variously estimated at 1000 to 1200 during the day. Four States were represented in the army of anglers on the opening day, and have been coming and going every day since.

Much complaint is being registered that in the seining for minnows for bait, that many game fish minnows are being taken and sold, according to the editor of the "Warsaw Times".

Mallard and pintails are arriving at Cut-off Lake in the Brunswick Bottoms by the thousands; some brant and geese too. The Missouri River, lakes and corn fields are full of them daily.

A report comes from Van Buren, Carter County, telling of a large buck deer traveling through the streets of the town at a high rate of speed in an attempt to escape a pack of hounds. The hounds were only a short distance behind the deer but they lost distance rapidly on the course through the town as the deer increased speed at every jump as it disappeared somewhere along Current River.

A banquet at which Governor Guy B. Park will be the principal speaker will feature a meeting of the Missouri State Planning Conference to be held at Columbia March 16th and 17. The banquet will take place on the opening evening.

Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation in the United States, has announced the number of summer camps of the CCC allotted to Missouri and the quota of men. Missouri will have twenty-one camps, an increase of four, with an enlisted strength of 8200 men. The enrollment for the new six months period will start April first.

Thirty-four acres were added to Big Lake State Park, nine miles west of Mound City, Holt County, last week when settlement was made out of court for lands that have been condemned by the State. The State now owns approximately 95 acres fronting on "Big Lake" which has a water area of some six or seven hundred acres and providing fine fishing, boating and waterfowl hunting in the season.

A jack salmon weighing nine pounds was recently caught at the Bailey Bridge, near Warsaw, according to C. E. Bailey. Mrs. Faye Harris is credited with catching the large pike perch.

Fishing during the recent severe cold snap in a "private" spot on the Lake of the Ozarks, O. P. Watson, a Kansas City angler, was rewarded with a 6 1/2 pound bass, probably the largest landed in the big lake this winter.

A report comes from Osceola on the Sac-Osage that Jack Salmon are on the run. The river began to run over the dam at Osceola. The fresh water and the cool spell is causing the salmon to be ravenously and some anglers are catching their limit in a short time.

Ralph Anderson expects to enter his name on the ticket for City Assessor at the April election. There is little pay attached to the office and Ralph feels that he is willing to serve the city.

Sales Convention Here Sunday, Monday, Tues.

A sales convention of the Rice-Stix Mercantile Co., of St. Louis will be held in Sikeston at the Hotel Marshall March 18, 19 and 20. Retailers from Southeast Missouri, Northeast Arkansas, Southern Illinois, and other points in the area will be in attendance one or more of the three days to see the new styles and to purchase merchandise.

Convict Negro In Vanduser Slaying; Is Given 35 Years

Benton, March 14.—Found guilty of second degree murder in connection with the slaying December 11, 1933, near Vanduser, of Doc Thomas, 81-year-old negro, Jake Green, negro preacher and farmer, was sentenced to 35 years in prison today by a Circuit Court jury.

Green shot and killed Thomas and another negro, Charles Williams, 45, at a rural dwelling when the three quarreled over ownership of a butchered pig. The men were slain with a shotgun. Trial of Green on a charge of murdering Williams is also expected at this time. Prosecuting Attorney M. E. Montgomery had asked that the defendant be found guilty of first degree murder, and that the penalty be death.

NEGROES JAILED IN HARNESS THEFTS

Three New Madrid County negroes, Tom Williams, "Red" Williams and Walter Ranson, were arrested Tuesday afternoon by Sheriff Sam Harris for the theft on two different occasions of harness from the R. T. Wainman farm, south of Sikeston. The three negroes were jailed at New Madrid and a third negro at Malden, also suspected of complicity in the thefts, was hunted there.

Several pieces of the harness sets were recovered in the arrests. The negroes at two different times, about two months ago and last week, raided the barns on the Wainman farm and carried away the harness. Officers hope to recover the remainder of the loot in clearing up the crimes.

Chevrolet to Report Orders Each Week

Detroit, Michigan, March 9, 1934. Mitchell-Sharp Chevrolet Co., Sikeston, Mo. Gentlemen:

The public acceptance of the 1934 Chevrolet, as proven by the large quantity of retail orders in the hands of our dealers, has been most gratifying, but the number of unfilled orders is rapidly becoming a serious problem to the public, the dealers and to Chevrolet. In order that you may have accurate and current information, we propose to send you each week a report of our progress.

We hope this plan will aid you in retaining a larger number of orders until delivery can be made by you. The attached sheet is the first in this series. We have refused to allow the demand to lower, in any respect, our standards of quality, and those customers who wait for Chevrolet cars will be rewarded by the best quality of merchandise we have ever produced.

Very truly yours,
Wm. E. HOLLER,
General Sales Manager

Garden Seed For Southeast Missouri

Shipment of seed for indigent family home gardens in five southeastern counties was ordered today by Eric Orf, State Garden Director. More than 8000 packages, each containing 18 varieties of seed, will be supplied families on relief rolls in Dunklin, Pemiscot, New Madrid, Stoddard and Scott Counties by the Missouri Relief and Reconstruction Commission.

More than 250 men have been placed over the State to assist in the distribution of seed and in supervision of planting and gardening. Seed will be shipped into all other Missouri Counties as the planting season moves northward.

Distribution of seed will be made in each county by the County Supervision, acting with the County Garden and the Relief and Re-employment Committees.

The 8000 packages of seed, when properly planted and worked, will yield sufficient fresh garden foods to feed more than 50,000 people this summer, with a surplus in the fall for canning.

Art Kassel Dance Well Attended Here

Approximately 776 persons attended the Art Kassel dance held in the Sikeston High School Auditorium Wednesday night. The gymnasium, which offers the largest suitable floor space, was crowded to capacity. The crowd was orderly and everyone present enjoyed themselves despite the crowded condition.

The dance was sponsored by the Lions Club, American Legion and the Chamber of Commerce, for the benefit of the Municipal Airport.

To those on Direct Relief we desire you to realize that this program is most important and should be given the utmost consideration and attention. You must realize that the Government, both local officials, who are trying to get this aid for you.

However, you must remember that you must do your part. Please assist the organization by doing your part as we want to assist you to help yourselves and your families.

County Chairman Garden Committee, Chaffee.

State Garden Program Now Being Outlined

The Garden Program, as outlined by the State, is fast becoming organized in the communities within Scott County. The purpose of the program is to help the needy families to produce vegetables, thus aiding them to become more self supporting. Strict supervision will be made in all forms. Paid supervisors in the capacity of a County Supervisor, a County Foreman and an Application Clerk, along with volunteer local committee from the local organization who are subject to the County Committee's ruling who act according to the rules as set out by the State Department.

All persons who make application for seeds, etc., and are given such aid, must co-operate with the organization and are required to tend the garden to the best of their ability and thus realize the most for their efforts. They will be under the supervision of the authorities, regardless as to the nature of the garden, whether individual, group or community.

The group garden is to be to the advantage and aid of those persons who cannot rent land otherwise.

In the community garden will be produced vegetables suitable for canning and storing purposes. The labor required for this class of garden will be furnished by those on relief.

A local foreman will, in all probability be appointed and paid thru CWA by the local committee. All persons on direct relief are eligible for this help. Otis O. Diven of Chaffee has been duly appointed as Chairman of the County Committee of gardens.

1.—Program—The State, County and community are launching, at this time, what is known as the "Garden Program" for the year 1934. For the purpose of helping those people who are on relief, to produce garden crops, for consumption by the needy and distressed.

Full co-operation must be given by all parties concerned or affected and this can only be done with the determination of the people on Direct Relief, to do their part by showing a willingness to act as instructed. In other words, the Government is willing to help you, to help yourself.

2.—Persons Affected—All persons are affected by this order who are at this time, or will be on Direct Relief.

3.—Seeds—Upon requisition, seed will be furnished by the State department, absolutely free to those qualifying for help.

4.—Fertilizer—The necessary amount of Commercial Fertilizer will be furnished by the Department on requisition of the County Committee.

5.—Insecticides—The necessary poisons and insecticides will also be furnished to combat with insects, etc.

6.—Supervision—A County Supervisor has been appointed who will be in charge of the County and will be available to all communities involved in this program. His duty is to cover all phases of the program, regardless as to the classification of the garden, wherever seed, etc., is supplied by the Government.

There has been a County Foreman appointed to assist the County Supervisor and any other officer or supervisor within the organization, entitled to his assistance.

In order to keep a complete and an exact record of every phase of the program, an appointment has been made known as Application Clerk. His duty is to keep a complete record of the activities of the communities within the County, also covering all phases of work within the organization. His records must be available at all times.

These officers are compensated by the State and have full authority to act and are subject only to the rules as set down by the authority of the State and Federal Department, and the instruction of the County Committee.

They must pass on to all Local Foremen and committees, the necessary instruction as given them. Their full co-operation is required at all times.

7.—Local Committees—Local Committees must be appointed in the communities having Group or Community Gardens, to take action on all questions arising within their respective localities. Their full co-operation is solicited and desirable as it is to the interest and for the benefit of their own distressed people that this program is planned. A Chairman should be appointed by the local committee, to represent their organization at the County Committee meetings, which will be held.

They will recommend to the County Committee certain adjustments to be made, relative to the activities within their community.

Classification of Gardens

8.—Individual Gardens—There will be what is known as the Individual Garden for those who are able to obtain the use of land for their own individual disposition and consumption. A special seed allotment will be made to those who apply for this class of garden and who make registration to that effect. Those parties interested and deservative of this should inquire about it immediately at your local office, as seed will be available within a few days.

9.—Group Gardening—This class known as Group Gardening is to help those who are unable to obtain the use of land for their individual gardens. Certain amounts of land are being obtained by the committees for this purpose, to be divided into small tracts and allotted to individuals requesting them. Seed will also be supplied by the State on Requisition. Everyone interested in this should make application at once, at your local office. This ground must be used and carefully attended, if application is made and use is granted.

Sikeston Man Accuses Three In Steele Holdup

A flat tire played its telling part in the arrest of two men and a woman held as suspects in the hold-up of Frank W. Van Horne of Sikeston, he said today. The victim lost $50 to three thugs, one of them striking him over the head with a pistol at the edge of Steele. Those held in Pemiscot County jail are Raymond Michie, Johnnie Young and Mrs. Hattie Pullen.

According to Van Horne, a seed dealer, Mrs. Pullen walked up to his automobile in front of an eating place-dance pavilion at the edge of Steele Tuesday night and ordered him to drive her in his car to her home in another part of town. She did not exhibit a pistol, he said, but acted as though she was concealing something beneath a coat, and talked in a commanding tone.

Van Horne and R. D. Clayton of Sikeston, returning from Memphis, had stopped at the place for a lunch. Clayton was still in the cafe, Van Horne waiting in the car for him.

When Van Horne drove away with the woman another machine followed close behind. The Sikeston man said Michie and Young were in the other car. After they had gone a short distance, Van Horne was told to halt his car, and he said the three proceeded to rob him of his money and business papers. The papers were found on the streets later, but the money was not.

As soon as the men left him, the Sikeston man found a marshal and deputy sheriff quickly, and the trio, which had developed a flat tire, was overhauled in Steele.

Officers said Mrs. Pullen admitted she asked the holdup victim to drive her, but the men deny they had a part in the robbery.

The officers at Steele said they have established Mrs. Pullen had a pistol in her possession at one time the night of the robbery, but the holdup victim did not see the weapon she is supposed to have carried.

Raymond Michie is described as the man now under $10,000 bond pending an appeal of a 10-year sentence received for his alleged part in the Bank of Steele robbery last July. Mrs. Pullen is a widow, her husband, Edgar Pullen, being slain with a pistol last fall at the State Line road house, near Cape Missourian.

A preliminary hearing for the three suspects is scheduled for Tuesday, before Judge Max L. Kelley.

Van Horne, an independent seeds dealer, is on leave as a solicitor for the Potashnick Truck Line, during the spring planting season.

Fish Drown and Die of Thirst In Water

Washington, March 14.—"You may not have ever seen a Dream Walking, but did you ever see a fish drown or die of thirst in the water?" Well, scientists did. The American Game Association has the authority of no less an eminent scientist than Dr. Ansel Keyes of Harvard that fish taken off hooks with dry hands and replaced in the water die of thirst and drowning. Wet hands will save them.

The cause of death of the fish from dry-hand handling is that the skin or scales are ruffled and the protective surface is broken. In salt water the fish then dies of thirst; in fresh water it literally drowns to death, according to the findings of Dr. Keyes, who has just finished a series of investigations into the breathing and drinking mechanism of fishes.

Other scientists have declared that disturbing of the "slime" protective coat allowed fungi to attach to the disturbed places, which killed the fish. Wet hands, however, saves the fish no matter what the cause, officials of the American Game Association point out.

Financial Condition of Sikeston Trust Company

Not being familiar with banking it is a difficult matter to make a plain statement of the condition of the Sikeston Trust Company without a prepared statement is furnished, but for the benefit of the public, we will say the way we understand the matter, there are real estate notes pledged and unpledged to the amount of $115,588.95.

There is $2000 cash in the bank of Sikeston and about $2000 due from an East St. Louis bank after they deduct balance due them. Balance due depositors on time certificates, $4,303.69; individual deposits restricted on which 5 per cent has not been paid, $2,718.25; individual deposits on which 5 per cent has been paid, $57,405.66; Christmas Club, $737.67.

As soon as Attorney Munger comes down to advise with Receiver Wallace, notice will be given those interested the hours the bank will be open in order that the matter of settling up the affairs of the bank can proceed in an orderly manner.

The grading was started last Saturday and was finished the middle of this week. Work on the sidewalk will start soon. The city will furnish the material and CWA labor will be used.

When completed this will give the south part of town its only direct street from the east limits to the Frisco tracks. The new route will be on Ethel to Kingshighway and on Gladys from there to the tracks.

Switch, was kicked by a mule Tuesday afternoon, when he entered the barnyard to feed the stock. As Tippy entered the barn, the mules came out and one of them kicked him, striking the left side of his head. The left jawbone was fractured.

Twenty-nine CWA laborers began work on March 2 on the land secured for the Municipal Airport. The grading and clearing of the land which is one mile east of town, just north of the Missouri Pacific tracks and immediately west of what is known as first ditch, has progressed rapidly. A total of 20 drivers with 40 mules are busy with shovels leveling the ground and one large tractor and grader is also at work. The work

JAMES' VERSION As Translated by James Huls, Jr.

The unlawful detainer suit that was held in the Town proceeded thus: First trial ended with the jury deciding that the defendant be ejected; a mistrial was declared through the fact that the magistrate did not swear in the jury. The second trial ended in a hung jury. The third trial, which sat on the afternoon of the second day, returned the verdict that the defendant was not guilty of unlawfully detaining the house that he occupied a few miles southeast of Matthews.

As the defendant was gaining all the time, the crowd at the barber shop decided that "if another trial had been held, damages would have probably been awarded". And there is always a bunch of intelligent citizens hanging out at the Town barber shop.

12.—Repayment—Any able bodied person who is on Direct Relief and is called upon to work in the community garden and fails to do so, will be taken from the Relief Roll.

The same ruling applies to those who neglect their assigned plot of group garden or individual garden, where seed has been furnished by the State.

SOUND ADVICE

By Art L. Wallhausen

If a bit of friendly advice could save you $15 to $50 in three months you'd probably be interested. And since advice costs nothing why not take a flyer in prognosticating—but not on the weather.

Just between us girls, it would be wise to start spending a larger per cent of the family budget on two items especially—canned food-stuffs and any kind of wearing apparel. Both are due for hikes upward soon. As a matter of fact, both have been hiked, but what has gone cannot be brought back.

It doesn't matter whether you're a Republican, a Democrat, a liberal, a Democratic-Republican or vice versa. The fact of codes remains. And in the textile game especially the codes are making a showing, more noticeable perhaps for the reason that there was so very much room there for improvement of conditions. Starvation wages, ruinous working conditions, exceptionally erratic hours had one effect in a depressed market six months or 12 months ago. Give-away raw materials matched with the lowest possible American wage scale brought textile products on the depression market at some of the lowest price levels in recorded history. Even the old folks could not find a parallel of 39-cent blue work shirts and 69-cent overalls—to mention two standbys in men's wear.

But price those two articles today. Cotton is one of the highly controlled AAA commodities. In fact, it was the original pet of the triple A scheme for raising farm product prices which fact coupled with revised work schedules, and wage levels in the mills along our eastern seaboard can have only one effect. Still higher prices.

Therefore, the advice to spend now in anticipation of another flurry upward when the spring season really opens up. Ask your own merchant and see whether or not he agrees. By this time he has become accustomed to seeing an unusual line of printed material across the face of his invoices, "Processing tax—so and so much". AND THAT IS ADDED TO THE RETAIL PRICE—the only legitimate place it can be added.

An extra suit, a topcoat, underwear, shirts, socks, all cotton or rayon garments, children's wearables will earn you a handsome profit if purchased now and just laid away for a few months.

The question, of course, is where am I going to get the money to make the investment with?

Well, that's your problem. I'm just dishing out the advice. But the same thing can be said of non-perishables. Codes are already in effect on glassware and linens, two items that must be considered in the cost of canned articles. Blanket codes affecting labor in the canning industry will be in effect during the coming season—and that means higher costs of doing business, which, in turn, will be reflected in the canned peaches, peas, and pumpkin, the corn, tomatoes, and the beans for your pantry shelf next fall and winter. Better take the advice of your grocer on just what items to stock now, but the point is to buy for your own good.

Of course a summer garden and considerable work this fall with a pressure cooker can work to defeat the buy-now campaign with reference to foods, but in the meantime a can of corn will earn more pennies in interest than the same amount would earn in your favorite saving bank in the same length of time—and I have nothing in particular against banks either.—Popular Bluff Republican.

We do not know what father prayed this prayer, but we do know that it is a prayer that every father might well pray. And we also know that every boy should read it as the heart prayer of his father. Give it a place in your scrap book—"Build me a son, oh Lord, who will be strong enough to know when he is weak and brave enough to face himself when he is afraid. One who will be proud and unbending in defeat, but humble and gentle in victory. A son whose wishbone will not be where his backbone should be; a son who will know that to know himself, is the foundation stone of all true knowledge. Rear him, I pray, not in the paths of ease and comfort, but under the stress and spur of difficulties and challenges. There let him learn to stand up in the storm; here let him learn compassion for those who fail. Build me a son whose heart will be clean whose goal will be high. A son who will master himself before he seeks to master other men. One who will learn to laugh, yet never forget how to weep. One who will reach into the future, yet never forget the past. And after all these are his, add, I pray, enough of a sense of humor so that he may always be serious, yet never take himself too seriously; a touch of humility, so that he may always remember the simplicity of true greatness; the open mind of true wisdom; the meekness of true strength. Then I, his father, will dare in the sacred recesses of my own heart to whisper, "I have not lived in vain". Amen!"—La Plata Home Press.

40 TRIPS TO BIG CHICAGO 4-H EVENT ARE OFFERED GIRLS FOR BEST RECORDS

Forty prize educational trips to the 13th National Club Congress in Chicago next November, several hundred gold medals, and a grand prize of a $400 cash scholarship are again offered in the National 4-H Club Girls' Record Contest just announced by the National Committee on Boys' and Girls' Club Work.

Club girls of this county and State are eligible to compete in this great annual affair for which Montgomery Ward provides the prizes and entertains the girls while in Chicago. State and County Club leaders will aid in conducting the contest and selecting winners.

The prizes are awarded for the best records in any one or more home projects, and are given to interest rural girls in 4-H training to prepare them better for useful lives.

Thousands of girls in nearly every State in the union have become interested in improving their heads, hearts, hands and health—the aim of 4-H—by this contest. Typical of the fine, capable young womanhood growing out of this friendly competition is the record of Hulda Stettler of Wisconsin who won the $400 scholarship last year and plans to use it at the State agricultural college this fall.

The girl's certified record showed that in 8 years she made 72 articles of home use and wear, baked 3658 dishes of food, and canned 3658 pints of fruit, vegetables and meats. Prizes which she won in County, State and National exhibitions and contests together with the value of the products totaled nearly $1500.

Club girls should apply to their local leaders or the county extension agent for rules and entry blanks of this contest.

It would be a miracle a year from now—but Warner Bros. sweep ahead of the parade again.—Sunday and Monday at Malone Theatre.

New Madrid County Superintendent's News

By Milus R. Davis

We note that we are to receive 14½% of our State aid this month which is better than the anticipated 10%. Last September we received 15% and this payment will bring the total up to 29½% for this school year.

Some more good news. Next year it is expected that we shall get 50% of the State aid due us which will be still better than the 29½% that we are receiving this year.

This increase will be due to larger State revenues. Thanks to our Governor for holding the Senate's feet to the fire. Otherwise, we would face another embarrassing year.

If 50% of the State is paid next year our schools will be in a fairly good position. Of course, we would like to see the State aid paid in full so we could cut our local property tax.

On March 5 we sent in requisitions for Federal Aid for 16 rural districts. Several consolidated schools are also asking for Federal Aid. This government aid will be used to finish the full legal term of school in districts that would otherwise be forced to close school or ask the teacher to finish on credit.

As soon as this government aid is approved, we shall give a list of the districts and the amount allowed each one.

The Fourth Quarterly Examination Questions have been received.

Chevrolet
Chevrolet Produced More Cars In February Than Any Other Company
The published reports are as follows:
CHEVROLET 72,273
Second Car.....59,337
Third Car.....34,709

1—During the first week of March Chevrolet produced 18,225 units.
2—Chevrolet expects to produce in excess of 100,000 cars in March, 80% being passenger cars.
3—The 1934 Chevrolet is an entirely new car embodying all the latest features. Had we merely modified our 1933 product we could have attained volume production at an earlier date.
4—Competitive Dealers can make immediate delivery, even though they produce less volume than Chevrolet. We are grateful to the Public for the demand that makes even our larger production inadequate.
5—We are allotting our cars to each Dealer on as fair and equitable a basis as possible. There will be no partiality shown to any section, for that would entail a sacrifice elsewhere.

We have received and delivered 10 new 1934 Chevrolets since March 1st. We thank you for waiting and the New Chevrolet will reward your patience.

A HUMAN INTEREST STORY

J. S. McConnell to F. E. Mount

Carlo was a stump tailed dog. He was born that way. I mean he was born a dog and with a stump tail. In the usual course of events he should have been named Bob, but he was not. He was given to me by Frank Mount. Frank Mount and I were about the same age and size, both being of eleven summers and winters at the time. We are older now.

I was at home then about three hundred yards from the Crossroads Schoolhouse. Frank lived a mile away. We both went to that school during the winter months and during the summer made regular hands on our father's farms. At all times on Saturday nights either I stayed with

Frank or he stayed with me and Sunday we were constant companions in numerous and sundry activities either in his neighborhood or mine.

He had two dogs. I had none, but there was a dog at my home my father claimed. He was a family dog of no use except to mind father's horse and chase rabbits. I went over to Frank's house late Saturday afternoon, my chores being finished, and Frank came home with me to "stay all night" I carried Carlo until just before we got to "my house". Then Frank took him. We did not want to break the news too suddenly. He was introduced as Carlo just as if Frank had named him and would keep him. As Frank's dog, he had the run of the place, but Frank and I kept our eyes on him. He was not house broke and we did not want him to get into disgrace. My folks, all but my father, thought he was the "cutest thing" they ever saw. My father was suspicious from the start. You see he had been a boy once. Carlo drank some milk and spilled more and then we had to put him to bed in the barn. We knew he would cry all night and that kept us from sleeping for a time. I awoke in the night and Frank and I got up and went out to the barn and made the old cow get up and give him a mid-night meal. My mother complained the next morning that the cow gave nothing but strippings out of one teat.

Frank did not stay all day as had been the custom. He left early in the morning and "forgot" to take Carlo with him. You see, that was a part of the plan. The absence of Carlo was soon discovered. My mother put two and two together and called the turn on her milk. I knew defeat or victory was near at hand. I met it boldly and prepared to have it out. My mother said: "You are not going to have that nasty pup here". That was the signal for the girls, my sisters, to come in. It had always seemed to me that sisters could invent more ways to interfere with boys than anybody else. I stood my grounds holding Carlo in my arms, and a battle royal was well approaching. My father looked up from his Globe-Democrat and said: "What's up here? What's up here?" When told, he quietly said: "Ah, let him alone; let him have it". And turned back to his Globe-Democrat. I think the Globe-Democrat helped settle it and from then on Carlo was mine. No one dared further dispute his rights on the premises. Carlo paid his debt of gratitude to my father three years afterward, when an angry bull rushed upon his saddle horn, father was a country doctor. Just before the bull gored the horse, Carlo hung him by the nose and Mr. Bull forgot all about the horse and everything else but Carlo. No bull was too big for Carlo to entertain.

Carlo grew to be a large and powerful little dog. He was colored like Frank's Ring dog. Had hair like Ring and Kate both, but all his instincts, except fighting, were Kate's. He fought like Ring. That is, he knew no master and as to fear, he never experienced it. Carlo was my dog. I was his man. For six years he was my constant companion. I taught him everything I knew, and he learned it readily. He often knew my desires before I did myself. I could tell him to "heel" or "catch" and he would do it. I could send him for miles into the woods after the cows. He would obey my every command. He was my body guard. Nothing could harm me. When I went to school he carried my books by a strap to the door and then returned home, but when school was out, he was there. He knew the time to the minute, and never missed. His life and mine were all in one. He did much of my work, carried in wood, went to market and kept off the calf while I milked. Most anything I did, he could do. He knew the difference between play and fighting. Play was never molested, but a fight, he stopped it, and without injury to my opponent, but he stopped it.

Getting him home and getting permission for him to stay absorbed all my working hours and I dreamed of it at night. Frank and I discussed and planned on how we would do it. We could not think or talk about anything else. Finally I hit upon the idea of naming him Carlo. Some six years before I had owned a shepherd dog named Carlo. This dog had assisted in finding me and Elmer Hartman when we were lost six years before. In my family he was credited with saving my life, but that is another story. That Carlo had already had a decent burial. It occurred to me that the magic of the name of Carlo would at least enlist my mother to assist in saving this one. It was a capital idea but all capital ideas do not always work.

I went over to Frank's house

I saw Carlo the last time on April 4th, 1892. I never will forget the picture. My folks moved from Simpson, Ill., on that date. I have no idea why I did it. I gave Carlo to Will Martin, my sister's husband, and left him there. We moved to the Indian Territory. In the excitement of leaving friends and relatives, Carlo was forgotten. I got onto the last car as the train pulled out to take my last look at the village, friends and relatives being left behind. I saw but one picture. That was Carlo standing on the depot platform, broad side to me with his head turned just enough to see me leaving him forever. I almost jumped off the train then running at full speed. I had all the pride and conceit of a 17-year-old, but the tears came anyway. I was heart broken. Carlo was not, when I did not return in a day or two. He would have nothing to do with anyone else, and in a short while became ill natured, mean and vicious, to such an extent that it was dangerous for anyone to approach him, and Will Martin had to shoot him in self defense. Carlo deserved a better fate from me. I have never owned another dog.

I was meaner than Carlo. I threw off my grief. He could not and perished. It is said that men have a second childhood. They must also have a second youth. I am approaching 60. Carlo's spirit has returned to me as evidence of a second youth. I am craving another Carlo.

THIS SIDE OF HEAVEN

The picture is always down to earth entertainment.

Laughs are many, precipitated by the normal human reaction to consider lightly the misfortunes of others, and there is an occasional tear or two.

The picture is full of that color which every family knows in some phase. It's the kind of show which permits you to invite audiences on the "laugh at your own troubles" premise.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

When Johnny McCloud, the only detective on the force who does not carry a gun, arrests George Perry, an employee of a recently robbed firm and who has been freed by the police as not having anything to do with the crime, he finds that Lola Parker, the torch singer he loves, is torn between Perry, Perry thinks that Johnny has the "goods" on him and confesses to Lola that he was implicated in the robbery and that he did it so that they would have sufficient money to get married on. Lola pleads with Johnny to free Perry, telling him why he committed the crime. Johnny, who up until this time has not been certain of his grounds, listens calmly while Lola unwittingly weaves a net around the man she loves. When Lola finishes her recital, Johnny tells her that he is sending Perry up to Sing Sing for ten years.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

On the train that took McCloud and Perry to Sing Sing, rode Lola. She had kept an eye on them, although they were totally unaware of her presence. The girl purchased a magazine, looked through it, handed it back in exchange for another, and at the same time suggested that McCloud and Perry might like it. The butcher went over to them and Perry purchased the book that Lola returned. His fingers had got the feel of a file through the pages.

McCloud leaned back and closed his eyes as though he intended to take a nap. "I hope there's a nice, long serial in that magazine—cause you'll have plenty of time to read it."

"That's a sweet thought. I appreciate it."

Just then Lola passed by them. McCloud noticed her and asked her

In this way George was just as much of a prisoner as he would have been fastened to McCloud (Posed by Jack Holt and Gavin Gordon) sit down, but she professed to be too nervous. George gave Lola an almost imperceptible nod, meaning "O. K. kid, I've got the file." "There'll be visiting days twice a month," McCloud suggested. "Any time you want to come up to see George, I'll be glad to take you up."

"That's great," Perry exclaimed. "You know—now that it's all over and I'm facing it, it doesn't seem as tough. If you're in the right spirit, five years can pass like five minutes."

Lola stopped and looked at her wrist watch. The conductor stuck his head in the door. "Next stop is Harmon."

"Well, I think I'll be running along to my own back yard," Lola declared as she started off. George turned over a couple of pages of his magazine, pretending to read.

McCloud again resumed his half reclining position, but this time, he did not close his eyes. Instead, he dug down into his pocket and drew out the diamond ring and looked at it. His reverie was interrupted by a drunken man, who was annoying Lola. The detective was alert. He started up, discovered that he was handcuffed to Perry. "Excuse me a minute," McCloud got out the key from his pocket and unlocked the handcuffs. "I'll be right back."

"Okay, Johnnie—I'll be right here."

"Sure you will," McCloud took the section of the handcuff that he had opened and fastened it to a part of the brass tubing sticking out from the end of the seat. In this way, George was just as much of a prisoner as he would have been fastened to McCloud.

The detective rushed into Lola's seat, grabbed the drunken man by the collar and shoved him out the door. Then he sat down to chat with Lola.

"What's the reason you're putting George in prison?" She inquired as the train stopped at Harmon.

"I don't get you."

"Is it because you're a cop and he's a thief—or is it just because you're a man and I'm a woman?"

"That's a pretty hard question, Lola. I don't know whether I can answer it or not—but it's something like this. If you didn't exist, I'd still stick George behind the bars because that's where he belongs; and if George didn't exist I'd still chase after you, because that's where I belong—and if you add that up, you get a rough idea of what I stand for."

Lola was giving quick, furtive glances out the window. "I know just what you must think of me after what I said and did."

"I haven't changed my opinion of you. I never will."

Lola covered her hand with hers. She was deliberately stalling. "No matter what I do?"

"No matter what you do."

She looked out of the window and saw something that caused her face to light with joy. McCloud did not catch the change of expression as her head was turned away at the moment. She had seen George leaving the train and was exultant in her triumph.

"Even if I wait for George?" she inquired.

"Sure," McCloud grinned. "You wait for George and I'll wait for you."

The train had started slowly. McCloud had lost his prisoner, but it was some minutes before he discovered it.

A few days later every police station had a picture of George posted with the caption, "Wanted for Robbery."

"Why don't you stick Lola's mug up there alongside of George's?" O'Neill inquired.

"Cause she hasn't done anything wrong," McCloud replied.

O'Neill registered disgust and spoke with elaborate sarcasm. "I suppose helping a criminal to escape is just high girlish spirits, huh? No kidding, Johnnie—I can just hear the hardening of your arteries as I stand here. Lettin' Perry give you the slip was bad enough, but what didya want to let her get away for?"

"Cause I can't go fishing without bait," McCloud became grim. "I'll find her. And when I find her I'll find him. Then I'll send him back to prison, and I'll marry her."

McCloud turned on his heel and left the room. A hunch had come to him that Lola might go to the music store at which she got all her orchestrations. Anyway, he was determined to run down the idea. It was no go, however, for she had not been there. McCloud asked the dealer to inform him if she should call, and left. Then he went to the post office and showed her picture to the special cop.

"If she should come to the General Delivery window for mail, grab her an' get right in touch with me," McCloud instructed the man. Then he went over to interview Lola's landlady. The girl had no been there either. Like the others

McCloud asked the landlady to get in touch with him if she should hear from the girl.

In their hideaway, George and Lola were planning to leave the country. A phone call had informed them that a freighter was leaving Pier 15 that night.

"The freighter's bound for Bermuda," George was elated. "I'll be aboard her when she sails." Lola's face fell. George reached forward and took her in his arms. "I've got a good job out there—an old friend of the family fixed it for me. We're leaving right away—we won't need any passports or anything—and it'll be fun going on the freighter."

"I'd go in a rowboat to get away from here," Lola declared.

"It'll be another world, Lola—we can start all over again."

She looked at him intently. "Clean?"

"Clean," George took her by the hand and led her over to a divan. He sat down with Lola on his knee and pulled her head down on his chest. "Ever been in Bermuda, honey? It'll be the thrill of your life. Seventy-two hours on a boat, and when you get up the third morning you see a speck on the ocean—that's Bermuda—it'll be like a living garden."

"With nothing to worry about. No trembling every time there's a knock on the door; no dying when the phone rings; no living like a hunted animal; no—" She paused as though unwilling to continue, but he finished for her, a vicious spiteful look coming into his face.

"No McCloud!"

As the days passed McCloud was given other orders. He was instructed to get busy rounding up a gang of wire tappers that had blown in from Chicago; but his heart was bent upon finding Lola, and he neglected it. As a result, McCloud received a call from Christie.

"I've known you ever since you got on the force, Johnnie. I picked you up fifteen years ago when you were pounding a beat in Canarsie with the goats. I brought you downtown and put you in plain clothes, an' you made a reputation for yourself. You sloughed your way up with those fists of yours till you got to be the best man I had." Christie spoke with victorious emphasis. "And then, all of a sudden you blow up on me. Right, now you aren't worth as much as the greenest rookie. You've caved in. I can stand anything but soldiering on the job."

McCloud answered quietly. "That isn't true, Lieutenant. I've been on police duty all the time."

Christie became savage. "I've asked you twice to forget about Perry. It's getting to be a joke around here—and you're getting to be a joke, too. Even the papers have taken it up. There's a fellow every day: 'McCloud Still Hunting for His Man!' He's making a sucker out of you and out of the department. He's keeping tabs on results—how you DIDN'T get your man. McCloud, I'm asking you to forget that case."

"Lieutenant, I can't forget about it. I never let a guy get away from me before, and I'm not going to begin now."

With rising anger, Christie threatened, "I order you to drop it."

Washington Comment

The recommendation of the President that the principal as well as the interest be guaranteed by the government under the Home Owners' Loan law is worthy of consideration for at least two reasons. In the first place, those who hesitated to accept unguaranteed securities in exchange for mortgages, will have less to fear, and conversions will occur on a far larger scale than heretofore and with less opposition from persons having funds invested in mortgages. Second, it cannot be denied that the offering of securities in which the interest alone was guaranteed, tended to cast a stigma upon the whole mass of government paper. With the principal of the Home Owners' Loan bonds guaranteed, the phrase "as good as a government bond" will take on much of its old-time significance, and confidence in government bonds of all sorts will be strengthened.

It is said that another change in the personnel of the President's cabinet is contemplated, the Attorney General being transferred to the post of Governor of the Philippines. By the suggested change, the Attorney General will lose his chance to become President by succession. If the President, the Vice-President, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Secretary of War were removed by death, the Attorney General would occupy the White House. The Attorney General, of course, does not covet the place of the Chief Executive thru any such calamity as that, and no doubt will take his place on the islands without giving a thought to the fact that so far as the next three years are concerned, his chance for sitting in the White House has departed.

According to rumor, an American has offered to buy himself a job as king of a small European County. If the report has anything behind it, truth indeed is stranger than fiction and one should be slow in condemning motion picture plots as based on an improbability.

A Nazi speaker in Germany thrills his hearers by declaring that "The worst is behind us". It is not possible to put ones O. K. on all that the Chancellor of the Fatherland has done, but perhaps can profitably turn Hitlerite to the extent of feeling and saying that the deepest and swiftest waters have been crossed.

Legalized liquor made a quiet entry into Washington the first of March. Stocks were short, but were soon re-enforced by ample supplies from without the boundaries of the District of Columbia. Business was good, there was a considerable amount of fire-water consumed, and arrests for intoxication were above normal. Window displays attracted attention and were looked at much as one regards the curiosities in a museum. Four per cent beer came without the calamity that was feared by the dregs, and without creating the Utopia that was hoped for by the wets. It is to be hoped that stronger potions may follow the same course. It may be that during the dry period, the public has outgrown heavy drinking, as it outgrew lesser vices, snuff-taking for instance. It will be a year or two before the effect of the return of drink can be determined accurately.

The memorial to the most considerate man should be erected in the State of New York. A burglar operating there collected what he wanted and then had a lunch from the ice box, carefully spreading newspapers over the polished table from which he ate, and placing the dishes upon them.

Scientists are claiming that smoking is not so bad after all, which brings to mind a remark attributed to Henry Ward Beecher: "A man may be excused for smoking tobacco, but there is no mantle of charity broad enough to cover the sin of smoking bad tobacco". Quoting again, recall the sailor who said: "There ain't no such thing as bad tobacco. Of course, some tobacco is better than others, but I never yet saw any tobacco that deserved to be called downright bad".

Counting back a decade from the present year, the Allies and Germany were dickering over reparations. Twenty years ago, the World War started, thirty years ago the Russo-Jap war began, and forty years ago the Chinese-Jap war opened.

JUNIOR CLASS OF CHARLESTON HIGH TO PRESENT PLAY

Charleston, March 13.—The 1934 Junior Class of the Charleston High School will present a play to be given April 6, at the High School Auditorium. The play chosen is "A Full House", a three-act farce written by Fred Jackson. Miss Mary Lee Simpson, English instructor of the Charleston High School and sponsor of the Junior Class, will be in charge of the play. The cast of characters includes: James Allen, Goldie Edwards, Louise Ringo, Jane Simpson, Frances Shelby, Frank Walton, Rouse Harp, S. B. Hardwick, Robert Boone, Robert Bush, Howard Rowe, Annette Mae Coon, Emma Lee Carson and Jennie Heggie. The cast started practicing this week.

Another military revelation is a bullet invented by a German Heinrich Gerlich. The bullet is of a .25 caliber type with soft metal wings or fins, capable of an initial speed of 5800 feet per second or about 4000 miles per hour, twice the speed of the ordinary high powered bullet. This bullet is termed the "winged horror" not only because it will penetrate half an inch of armor plate, but for its great explosive power similar to that of the dum-dum bullet which spreads upon striking the target.

HARRY C. BLANTON
U. S. ATTORNEY
Harry C. Blanton, of Sikeston, and publisher of The Sikeston Standard, has been appointed U. S. District Attorney for the Eastern District of Missouri, with headquarters in St. Louis.
Harry Blanton comes from a distinguished Missouri family. His grandfather was prominent in newspaper circles, as are two of his uncles and his father. Other members of the family have attained prominence in business and professional circles.
The writer knew Harry when he first came to Sikeston to practice his profession fresh from law school in Washington. By diligence, intelligence and rugged honesty he soon made a name for himself as one of Missouri's most promising younger citizens and in the short space of twenty years, he has become one of the most highly respected member of the legal fraternity in a State famous for its outstanding lawyer.
Harry has richly earned preferment at the hands of his party and the people of his State. He is one public official whose garments will never become stained with the slightest taint of suspicion. If all government appointees were of the same stripe the Roosevelt administration would go down in history as the most honorable and cleanest in all our nation's history.
Good luck to you, Harry. We confidently expect your administration to lead to further and higher honors in the years to come.—Oscola (Ark.) Times.

SENIOR CLASS RINGS FROM HOME JEWELER

According to The Sikeston (Mo.) Standard the senior class in Sikeston high school purchased their class rings from a Sikeston Jeweler.

Thirty-one of the rings were delivered and they are reported as being very pretty.

The idea of buying class rings from a local dealer is most commendable. Now if the graduates order their commencement programs from a Sikeston printing plant, things will be "just lovely". In most commodities home newspapers are overlooked when time comes to order programs and rings even though better service and lower prices are offered.—Oscola (Ark.) Times.

18 CEDARS OF LEBANON TO BE GIFT TO ROOSEVELT

New York, March 10.—Eighteen cedars of Lebanon which are being shipped from Beirut to President Roosevelt are symbolical of life and growth to the people of Lebanon, Barclay Acheson, secretary of the Near-East Foundation, explained today.

The trees are an expression of gratitude for what the American people have done for the people of the Near East, he said.

Three groups are making the gift. They are the Armenian Church, the Near-East League, composed of former inmates of orphanages supported in Syria by Americans, and the Near-East Brotherhood, composed of students

Shrubs for background planting should be selected for their height as well as for leaf and blossom says Miss Julia Rocheford of the Missouri College of Agriculture. They serve as a screen for what-ever is behind and also as a background for the shrubs and flowers in front of them. Some of the early bloomers, such as lilacs, forsythias, pussy willow, bush honeysuckle and sweet-scented mockorange should be included in the background plantings.

REWARD PAID FOR CONVICTION OF THIEF

A $50 reward has been paid by the Missouri Ruralist Protective Service for the arrest and conviction of John E. Frazier, who stole a watch and $13 in money from the posted premises of Hugh Hobbs, Route 1, Illinois. Frazier was given a penitentiary sentence of two years for burglary and two years for larceny. At the suggestion of Service Member Hobbs, the reward was divided equally between him and Sheriff Joseph Anderson, Scott County, who made the arrest. One important factor in the conviction was Mr. Hobbs' ability to identify the watch because of markings previously placed on it.

Since the Missouri Ruralist Protective Service began operation in June, 1927, rewards amounting to $22,200 have been paid for the conviction of 809 thieves found guilty of stealing from Missouri farmers, whose premises are posted with Protective Service signs.

It is believed the new system now being used by the Protective Service, for marking practically all farm property for identification to ease of theft will go a long way toward curbing thefts from farmers in the future.

PRESENTDAY MAYAS RETAIN ANCIENT SKILL

Washington, March 14.—The so-called "lost" civilization of the Mayas, whose mighty stone cities have been abandoned for 500 years in the jungles of Central America, is very much alive in the mountains of Guatemala.

New evidence that the once all-conquering Maya race is far from extinct has come to the Smithsonian Institution in the form of a collection of jewelry, fabrics and other works of art made by the Mayas of today almost exactly as they were made five centuries ago at the height of the prehistoric empire's glory.

The Mayas were coastwise traders in the Caribbean Sea when Columbus discovered America. On his fourth voyage Columbus met one of their trading ships off the Honduran coast, loaded with woven, embroidered cotton textiles much like those in the Smithsonian collection. The meeting, however, only served to confirm the discoverer's erroneous conviction that he had reached the East Indies.

Look at a Maya of today, and you will see just how his empire-building ancestors looked. The race has changed little physically, if at all, in 500 years, according to Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, Smithsonian anthropologist.

The Mayas still speak their native language and retain a good deal of their old pagan religion, which has been mixed, with some curious results, with Christian practices learned from early missionaries.

Strangely enough, the present-day Mayas are of little or no help to archeologists who have been trying for many years to piece together the story of their past. Many ruined Maya cities in the jungles of Guatemala and Yucatan have been explored, cleared of debris and partly restored, but the Mayas of today can give little or no aid in deciphering the hieroglyphics sculptured on the monuments.

Although this phase of their civilization has been forgotten, their art work has deteriorated little, if at all, since the days of their greatness. In the collection of modern Maya art there is gold filigree work that would do credit to the finest European goldsmiths of any age, well-executed silver ornaments, baskets and other objects.

That Mayas still weave cotton fabrics on the old style handlooms with beautiful intermixtures of colors in elaborate designs. Their yarns are dyed in the method of their ancestors with vegetable dyes. The design of the Quetzal, sacred bird of Guatemala, frequently is used.

THE EDITOR
SAYS—

There are so many different paid agents for the Government ABC's relief work of one sort or other that they should begin to wear tags in order that they can tell the fellow who needs relief from the fellow trying to provide relief. The newspapers are furnished columns of stuff to print to educate everybody from the farmer to the man out of work. We are getting pretty tired of this propaganda stuff without pay and expect to get an extra large waste basket to file it away for kindling purposes. Of the man that is on the ragged edge of starvation and who is ridden the most, the country editor is the boy. He is propagandized to death, is coded to distraction, and none of this relief measures furnishes him bacon and beans.

Considerable election talk is going around at this time. Some truthful, most of it untruthful. This paragraph is written and printed because it will be a square deal. N. E. Fuchs, Jr., is employed a CWA headquarters. The first few weeks his services were without pay, then he was placed on the payroll of the city at $18 per week and assigned to the CWA at the same duties he had been fulfilling for nothing. The past Friday he was placed on the CWA payroll at $15 per week and given $3 per week by the city, totaling $18. The work he is doing is worth a great deal more than he is getting, and the criticism leveled at him is not because he does not earn the salary, but because he is the Mayor's son. This lad is thoroughly competent, is doing his work well and will receive no criticism from the editor of The Standard.

Has anyone ever asked you why you got married. This is for men. We have heard it said that some married for money, some for love, then some for convenience and others because they felt sorry for the girl. This is not aimed to stir up trouble in a household, so when you are asked why you married, the best answer will be for love and the sweet disposition.

Many of the people who rent property instead of owning it are indifferent to the appearance of that property. If a place looks shabby and poorly kept, they say they are not going to spend their precious hours fixing it up. Let the landlord attend to it, if he wants a nice looking place, they say. But the landlord will say that to pay taxes and keep a building well repaired, reduces income from the property to a low figure. He feels that the tenant should at least co-operate by keeping the grounds scrupulously neat, and by great care not to mar the property in any way. Tenants who take pride in the places they occupy and keep them attractive are in demand and are apt to be favored when questions arise about rent payments.—Lead Belt News.

The Standard wishes to compliment the School Board for consenting to the use of the Auditorium for the dance sponsored by a number of the Civic Organizations of the city for the benefit of the airport fund. This is as it should be.

Southern Congressmen are making a great to-do about the peanut crop and want a peanut plov-up, same as cotton and wheat. And why not? They might add sassafras and persimmons to their crop, too, as these crops are raised all over the South.

Another story: If Dr. Presnell is elected Mayor, he will forbid anyone in the corporate limits of the city to keep a pig or permit chickens to run at large. That has been a law of the city for years and enforced whenever complaint has been made. It doesn't lie in the power of any officer to disregard the city ordinances, if he discharges his duty. Chickens and hogs have been barred for years and all such nuisance abated.

When we go to preaching we are going to insist on the members of the congregation, or the church, being law abiding citizens. Then we are going to leave it with their conscience whether they dance or play cards. That is to be between them and their Maker whether it is a sin or not. We are going to set the example of living an humble life, of being charitable and patriotic. We are going to be forgiving and lend a helping hand to those who have erred and paid the debt to society, and to the woman who has been unfortunate.

The Standard force has been badly handicapped for some time by the lack of sufficient help to cover the mechanical end of the shop and the news and soliciting. The Graphic Arts Code has called on us to raise salaries, increase the force, shorten the work hours, and has not ordered us to raise our ad and job rates, tell us how and where to get the money to carry on. Neither have they ordered the public to cease seeking cut-rate and starvation prices for work. They have ordered that but one apprentice to every five journeymen be used in shops which may help some.

This past week the Telegraph Department of Chillicothe Business College placed one of its recent graduates, Miss Flossie Dickerson, as manager of the Western Union office here.

Convict Negro In Vanduser Slaying;
Is Given 35 Years

Benton, March 14.—Found guilty of second degree murder in connection with the slaying December 11, 1933, near Vanduser, of Doc Thomas, 81-year-old negro, Jake Green, negro preacher and farmer, was sentenced to 35 years in prison today by a Circuit Court jury.

Green shot and killed Thomas and another negro, Charles Wil-iams, 45, at a rural dwelling when the three quarreled over ownership of a butchered pig. The men were slain with a shotgun. Trial of Green on a charge of murdering Williams is also expected at this term. Prosecuting Attorney M. E. Montgomery had asked that the defendant be found guilty of first degree murder, and that the penalty be death.

NEGROES JAILED IN HARNESS THEFTS

Three New Madrid County negroes, Tom Williams, "Red" Williams and Walter Ranson, were arrested Tuesday afternoon by Sheriff Sam Harris for the theft on two different occasions of harness from the R. T. Wainman farm, south of Sikeston. The three negroes were jailed at New Madrid and a third negro at Malden, also suspected of complicity in the thefts, was hunted there. Several pieces of the harness sets were recovered in the arrests. The negroes at two different times, about two months ago and last week, raided the barns on the Wainman farm and carried away the harness. Officers hope to recover the remainder of the loot in clearing up the crimes.

Chevrolet to Report
Orders Each Week

Detroit, Michigan, March 9, 1934 Mitchell-Sharp Chevrolet Co., Sikeston, Mo.

The public acceptance of the 1934 Chevrolet, as proven by the large quantity of retail orders in the hands of our dealers, has been most gratifying, but the number of unfilled orders is rapidly becoming a serious problem to the public, the dealers and to Chevrolet. In order that you may have accurate and current information, we propose to send you each week a report of our progress.

We hope this plan will aid you in retaining a larger number of orders until delivery can be made by you. The attached sheet is the first in this series. We have refused to allow the demand to lower, in any respect, our standards of quality, and those customers who wait for Chevrolet cars will be rewarded by the best quality of merchandise we have ever produced.

Very truly yours,
Wm. E. HOLLER,
General Sales Manager

Garden Seed For Southeast Missouri

Shipment of seed for indigent family home gardens in five southeastern counties was ordered today by Eric Orr, State Garden Director. More than 8000 packages, each containing 18 varieties of seed, will be supplied families on relief rolls in Dunklin, Pemiscot, New Madrid, Stoddard and Scott Counties by the Missouri Relief and Reconstruction Commission.

More than 250 men have been placed over the State to assist in the distribution of seed and in supervision of planting and garden- ing. Seed will be shipped into all other Missouri Counties as the planting season moves northward. Distribution of seed will be made in each county by the County Supervisor, acting with the County Garden and the Relief and Reconstruction Committees.

The 8000 packages of seed, when properly planted and worked, will yield sufficient fresh garden foods to feed more than 50,000 people this summer, with a surplus in the fall for canning.

Art Kassel Dance
Well Attended Here

Approximately 776 persons attended the Art Kassel dance held in the Sikeston High School Auditorium Wednesday night. The gymnasium, which offers the largest suitable floor space, was crowded to capacity. The crowd was orderly and everyone present enjoyed themselves despite the crowded condition.

The dance was sponsored by the Lions Club, American Legion and the Chamber of Commerce, for the benefit of the Municipal Airport.

To those on Direct Relief we desire you to realize that this program is most important and should be given the utmost consideration and attention. You must realize that the Government, both local officials, who are trying to get this aid for you.

However, you must remember that you must do your part. Please assist the organization by doing your part as we want to assist you to help yourselves and your families.

State Garden Program
Now Being Outlined

The Garden Program, as outlined by the State, is fast becoming organized in the communities within Scott County. The purpose of the program is to help the needy families to produce vegetables, etc., thus aiding them to become more self supporting. Strict supervision will be made in all forms. Paid supervisors in the capacity of a County Supervisor, a County Foreman and an Application Clerk, along with volunteer local committee from the local organization who are subject to the County Committee's ruling who act according to the rules as set out by the State Department.

All persons who make application for seeds, etc., and are given such aid, must co-operate with the organization and are required to tend the garden to the best of their ability and thus realize the most for their efforts. They will be under the supervision of the authorities, regardless as to the nature of the garden, whether individual, group or community.

The group garden is to be to the advantage and aid of those persons who cannot rent land otherwise.

In the community garden will be produced vegetables suitable for canning and storing purposes. The labor required for this class of garden will be furnished by those on relief.

A local foreman will, in all probability be appointed and paid thru CWA by the local committee.

All persons on direct relief are eligible for this help. Otis O. Diven of Chaffee has been duly appointed as Chairman of the County Committee of gardens.

1.—Program—
The State, County and community are launching, at this time, what is known as the "Garden Program" for the year 1934. For the purpose of helping those people who are on relief, to produce garden crops, for consumption by the needy and distressed.

Full co-operation must be given by all parties concerned or affected and this can only be done with the determination of the people on Direct Relief, to do their part by showing a willingness to act as instructed. In other words, the Government is willing to help you, to help yourself.

2.—Persons Affected—
All persons are affected by this order who are at this time, or will be on Direct Relief.

3.—Seeds—
Upon requisition, seed will be furnished by the State department, absolutely free to those qualifying for help.

4.—Fertilizer—
The necessary amount of Commercial Fertilizer will be furnished by the Department on requisition of the County Committee.

5.—Insecticides—
The necessary poisons and insecticides will also be furnished to combat with insects, etc.

6.—Supervision—
A County Supervisor has been appointed who will be in charge of the County and will be available to all communities involved in this program. His duty is to cover all phases of the program, regardless as to the classification of the garden, wherever seed, etc., is supplied by the Government.

There has been a County Foreman appointed to assist the County Supervisor and any other officer or supervisor within the organization, entitled to his assistance.

In order to keep a complete and an exact record of every phase of the program, an appointment has been made known as Application Clerk. His duty is to keep a complete record of the activities of the communities within the County, also covering all phases of work within the organization. His records must be available at all times.

These officers are compensated by the State and have full authority to act and are subject only to the rules as set down by the authority of the State and Federal Department, and the instruction of the County Committee.

They must pass on to all Local Foremen and committees, the necessary instruction as given them. Their full co-operation is required at all times.

7.—Local Committees—
Local Committees must be appointed in the communities having Group or Community Gardens, to take action on all questions arising within their respective localities. Their full co-operation is solicited and desirable as it is to the interest and for the benefit of their own distressed people that this program is planned. A Chairman should be appointed by the local committee, to represent their organization at the County Committee meetings, which will be held.

They will recommend to the County Committee certain adjustments to be made, relative to the activities within their community.

Classification of Gardens

8.—Individual Gardens—
There will be what is known as the Individual Garden for those who are able to obtain the use of land for their own individual disposition and consumption. A special seed allotment will be made to those who apply for this class of garden and who make registration to that effect. Those parties interested and desirative of this should inquire about it immediately at your local office, as seed will be available within a few days.

9.—Group Gardening—
This class known as Group Gardening is to help those who are unable to obtain the use of land for their individual gardens. Certain amounts of land are being obtained by the committees for this purpose, to be divided into small tracts and allotted to individuals requesting them. Seed will also be supplied by the State on Requisition. Everyone interested in this should make application at once, at your local office. This ground must be used and carefully attended, if application is made and use is granted.

10.—Community Garden—
Third and last, there is to be planned for the communities desiring it, what is to be known as a Community Garden.

There will be allotted a plot of ground to be used to produce, for the purpose of storing and preserving the yield, only. The purpose of this is to create a supply to be used by the community later in the year, to assist those on Direct Relief along with the other Relief Programs.

This work will be under the direction of a foreman, who will be appointed locally by the committee. He will work in full co-operation with the County authorities, and will be subject to their orders or direction.

Those on Direct Relief will be called upon to do their part of the work in this garden and will be given credit, applicable as payment on the relief they obtain at the usual rate.

In this regard, we must have your willingness to do your part. Seed, etc., for this plot has been requisitioned and will soon be delivered.

11.—Registration—
All parties who are on Direct Relief must register at your local office and make application if they expect any assistance from this organization.

12.—Repayment—
Any able bodied person who is on Direct Relief and is called upon to work in the community garden and fails to do so, will be taken from the Relief Roll.

The same ruling applies to those who neglect their assigned plot of group garden or individual garden, where seed has been furnished by the State.

13.—Co-operation—

The unlawful detainer suit that was held in the Town proceeded thus: First trial ended with the jury deciding that the defendant be ejected; a mistrial was declared through the fact that the magistrate did not swear in the jury. The second trial ended in a hung jury. The third trial, which sat on the afternoon of the second day, returned the verdict that the defendant was not guilty of unlawfully detaining the house that he occupied a few miles southeast of Marshfield.

As the defendant was gaining all the time, the crowd at the barber shop decided that "if another trial had been held, damages would have probably been awarded." And there is always a bunch of intelligent citizens hanging out at the Town barber shop.

stock of the store and will continue it as a general store. He is to take charge April 1st.

Placements by Chillicothe Business College last week included a $1200-a-year Civil Service appointment in Kansas City, a $115 per month State job at Jefferson City and a $25 per week placement at Continental Can Co. in Chicago.

Sikeston Man
Accuses Three In
Steele Holdup

A flat tire played its telling part in the arrest of two men and a woman held as suspects in the hold-up of Frank W. Van Horne of Sikeston, he said today. The victim lost $50 to three thugs, one of them striking him over the head with a pistol at the edge of Steele. Those held in Pemiscot County jail are Raymond Michie, Johnnie Young and Mrs. Hattie Pullem.

According to Van Horne, a seed dealer, Mrs. Pullem walked up to his automobile in front of an eating place-dance pavilion at the edge of Steele Tuesday night and ordered him to drive her in his car to her home in another part of town. She did not exhibit a pistol, he said, but acted as though she was concealing something beneath a coat, and talked in a commanding tone.

Van Horne and R. D. Clayton of Sikeston, returning from Memphis, had stopped at the place for a lunch. Clayton was still in the cafe, Van Horne waiting in the car for him.

When Van Horne drove away with the woman another machine followed close behind. The Sikeston man said Michie and Young were in the other car. After they had gone a short distance, Van Horne was told to halt his car, and he said the three proceeded to rob him of his money and business papers. The papers were found on the streets later, but the money was not.

As soon as the men left him, the Sikeston man found a marshal and deputy sheriff quickly, and the trio, which had developed a flat tire, was overhauled in Steele.

Officers said Mrs. Pullem admitted she asked the holdup robbery to drive her, but the men deny they had a part in the robbery.

The officers at Steele said they have established Mrs. Pullem had a pistol in her possession at one time the night of the robbery, but the holdup victim did not see the weapon she is supposed to have carried.

Raymond Michie is described as the man now under $10,000 bond pending an appeal of a 10-year sentence received for his alleged part in the Bank of Steele robbery last July. Mrs. Pullem is a widow, her husband, Edgar Pullem, being slain with a pistol last fall at the State Line road house, near Steele.

A preliminary hearing for the three suspects is scheduled for Tuesday, before Judge Max L. Kelley.

Van Horne, an independent seeds dealer, is on leave as a solicitor for the Potashnick Truck Line, during the spring planting season.—Cape Missourian.

Fish Drown and Die of Thirst In Water

Washington, March 14.—"You may not have ever seen a Dream Walking, but did you ever see a fish drown or die of thirst in the water?" Well, scientists did. The American Game Association has the authority of no less an eminent scientist than Dr. Ansel Keyes of Harvard that fish taken off hooks with dry hands and replaced in the water die of thirst and drowning. Wet hands will save them.

The cause of death of the fish from dry-hand handling is that the skin or scales are ruffled and the protective surface is broken. In salt water the fish then dies of thirst; in fresh water it literally drowns to death, according to the findings of Dr. Keyes, who has just finished a series of investigations into the breathing and drinking mechanism of fishes.

Other scientists have declared that disturbing of the "slime" protective coat allowed fungi to attach to the disturbed places, which killed the fish. Wet hands, however, saves the fish no matter what the cause, officials of the American Game Association point out.

Financial Condition of Sikeston Trust Company

Not being familiar with banking it is a difficult matter to make a plain statement of the condition of the Sikeston Trust Company without a prepared statement is furnished, but for the benefit of the public, we will say the way we understand the matter, there are real estate notes pledged and unpledged to the amount of $115,588.95.

There is $2000 cash in the bank of Sikeston and about $2000 due from an East St. Louis bank after they deduct balance due them. Balance due depositors on time certificates, $4,309.69; individual deposits requisitioned on which 5 per cent has not been paid, $2,718.25; individual deposits on which 5 per cent has been paid, $57,405.66; Christmas Club, $737.67.

As soon as Attorney Munger comes down to advise with Receiver Wallace, notice will be given those interested the hours the bank will be open in order that the matter of settling up the affairs of the bank can proceed in an orderly manner.

Ethel Street Connected With South Kingshighway

The west end of Ethel Street has been extended to connected with Kingshighway immediately north of the W. L. Hutters residence and opposite the east end of Gladys Street. The property is owned by W. L. Righter, who appeared before the City Council several months ago and proposed that the street be continued through and that he would donate the property on condition that the city would build a sidewalk on one side.

The grading was started last Saturday and was finished the middle of this week. Work on the sidewalk will start soon. The city will furnish the material and CWA labor will be used.

When completed this will give the south part of town its only direct street from the east limits to the Frisco tracks. The new route will be on Ethel to Kingshighway and on Gladys from there to the tracks.

C. OF C. ELECTION OF OFFICES TO BE HELD AT
AT HOTEL MARSHALL THU.

The Chamber of Commerce's election and installation of officers will be held in the dining room of the Marshall Hotel at 8:30 Thursday evening, March 22, with a smoker. Tickets are being sold by Ernest Harper and M. M. Beck at the twenty-five cents apiece with the Chamber of Commerce paying out of their treasury fund the balance necessary to pay for the food.

There will be a speaker from St. Louis, whose name we do not yet know, as well as a few remarks by the outgoing officers, etc.

KICKED BY MULE
Lewis A. Tippy, who reside

Switch, was kicked by a mule Tuesday afternoon, when he entered the barnyard to feed the stock. As Tippy entered the barn, the mules came out and one of them kicked him, striking the left side of his head. The left jawbone was fractured.

Twenty-nine CWA laborers began work on March 2 on the land secured for the Municipal Airport. The grading and clearing of the land which is one mile east of town, just north of the Missouri Pacific tracks and immediately west of what is known as first ditch, has progressed rapidly. A total of 20 drivers with 40 mules are busy with shovels leveling the ground and one large tractor and grader is also at work. The work

W. F. Frisk, editor of the Long Beach (Calif.) Press-Telegram, says:

"Did you ever stop to think that advertising makes the balanced newspaper?"

"Advertising balances the newspaper by acquainting readers with the latest developments in the markets as well as the latest happenings in Washington, in London, in Moscow, in the State Capital, the county seat and the home town. 'The housewife is interested in what the food stores are offering today, in what the department stores have to say about the progress of fashions as displayed in the 'show windows' of the advertising pages. Even the classified columns have their human interest stories.

"Because of this all-around service, the newspaper is the dominating advertising medium.

"Because advertising is as current as news—or should be—advertisers find the newspaper the most productive agency as measured by actual results. It is the dependable, day-by-day voice-piece of changes and bargains in the merchandising program.

"To achieve the best results, to be sure, advertising in newspapers must be attractive, newsy, consistent, truthful."

MISSOURI GAME
AND FISH NEWS

There were estimated to be six thousand fewer trout of catchable size in the spring branch at Roaring River State Park, south of Cape Girardeau, at nightfall March first, the opening day of the season, according to Park Keeper Hugh Brixey. The crowd was variously estimated at 1000 to 1200 during the day. Four States were represented in the army of anglers on the opening day, and have been coming and going every day since.

Much complaint is being registered that in the seining for minnows for bait, that many game fish minnows are being taken and sold, according to the editor of the "Warsaw Times".

Mallard and pintails are arriving at Cut-off Lake in the Brunswick Bottoms by the thousands; some brand and geese too. The Missouri River, lakes and corn fields are full of them daily.

A report comes from Van Buren, Carter County, telling of a large buck deer traveling through the streets of the town at a high rate of speed in an attempt to escape a pack of hounds. The hounds were only a short distance behind the deer but they lost distance rapidly on the course through the town as the deer increased speed at every jump as it disappeared somewhere along Current River.

A banquet at which Governor Guy B. Park will be the principal speaker will feature a meeting of the Missouri State Planning Conference to be held at Columbia March 16th and 17. The banquet will take place on the opening evening.

Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation in the United States, has announced the number of summer camps of the CCC allotted to Missouri and the quota of men. Missouri will have twenty-one camps, an increase of four, with an enlisted strength of 8200 men. The enrollment for the new six months period will start April first.

Thirty-four acres were added to Big Lake State Park, nine miles west of Mound City, Holt County, last week when settlement was made out of court for lands that have been condemned by the State. The State now owns approximately 45 acres fronting on "Big Lake" which has a water area of some six or seven hundred acres and providing fine fishing, boating and waterfowl hunting in the season.

A jack salmon weighing nine pounds was recently caught at the Bailey Bridge, near Warsaw, according to C. E. Bailey. Mrs. Faye Harris is credited with catching the large lake perch.

Fishing during the recent severe cold snap in a "private" spot on the Lake of the Ozarks, O. P. Watson, a Kansas City angler, was rewarded with a 6½ pound bass, probably the largest landed in the big lake this winter.

A report comes from Osceola on the Sac-Osage that Jack Salmon are on the run. The river began to run over the dam at Osceola. The fresh water and the cool spell is causing the salmon to bite ravenously and some anglers are catching their limit in a short time.

Ralph Anderson expects to enter his name on the ticket for City Assessor at the April election. There is little pay attached to the office and Ralph feels that he is willing to perform a public duty.

SOUND ADVICE

By Art L. Wallhausen

If a bit of friendly advice could save you $15 to $50 in three months you'd probably be interested. And since advice costs nothing why not take a flyer in prognosticating—but not on the weather.

Just between us girls, it would be wise to start spending a larger per cent of the family budget on two items especially—canned food-stuffs and any kind of wearing apparel. Both are due for hikes upward soon. As a matter of fact, both have been hiked, but what has gone cannot be brought back.

It doesn't matter whether you're a Republican, a Democrat, a liberal Democratic-Republican or vice versa. The fact of codes remains. And in the textile game especially the codes are making a showing, more noticeable perhaps for the reason that there was so very much room there for improvement of conditions. Starvation wages, ruinous working conditions excepted in a depressed market six months or 12 months ago. Give-away raw materials matched with the lowest possible American wage scale brought textile products on the depression market at some of the lowest price levels in recorded history. Even the old folks could not find a parallel of 39-cent blue work shirts and 69-cent overalls—to mention two standbys in men's wear.

But price those two articles today. Cotton is one of the highly controlled AAA commodities. In fact, it was the original pet of the triple A scheme for raising farm product prices which fact coupled with revised work schedules, and wage levels in the mills along our eastern seaboard can have only one effect. Still higher prices. Therefore, the advice to spend now in anticipation of another hurry upward when the spring season really opens up. Ask your own merchant and see whether or not he agrees. By this time he has become accustomed to seeing an unusual line of printed material across the face of his invoices, "Processing tax—so and so much".

AND THAT IS ADDED TO THE RETAIL PRICE—the only legitimate place it can be added. An extra suit, a topcoat, underwear, shirts, socks, all cotton or rayon garments, children's wearables will earn you a handsome profit if purchased now and just laid away for a few months.

The question, of course, is where am I going to get the money to make the investment with?

Well, that's your problem. I'm just dishing out the advice.

But the same thing can be said of non-perishables. Codes are already in effect on glassware and linens, two items that must be considered in the cost of canned articles. Blanket codes affecting labor in the canning industry will be in effect during the coming season—and that means higher costs of doing business, which, in turn, will be reflected in the canned peaches, peas, pears and pumpkin, the corn, tomatoes, and the beans for your pantry shelf next fall and winter. Better take the advice of your grocer on just what items to stock now, but the point is to buy for your own good.

Of course a summer garden and considerable work this fall with a pressure cooker can work to defeat the buy-now campaign with reference to foods, but in the meantime a can of corn will earn more pennies in interest than the same amount would earn in your favorite saving bank in the same length of time—and I have nothing in particular against banks either.—Popular Bluff Republican.

We do not know what father prayed this prayer, but we do know that it is a prayer that every father might pray. And we also know that every boy should read it as the heart prayer of his father. Give it a place in your soul as well as a place in your scrap book—"Build me a son, oh Lord, who will be strong enough to know when he is weak and brave enough to face himself when he is afraid. One who will be proud and unbending in defeat, but humble and gentle in victory. A son whose wishbone will not be where his backbone should be; a son who will know that to know himself, is the foundation stone of all true knowledge. Rear him, I pray, not in the paths of ease and comfort, but under the stress and spur of difficulties and challenges. There let him learn to stand up in the storm; here let him learn compassion for those who fail. Build me a son whose heart will be clean whose goal will be high. A son who will master himself before he seeks to master other men. One who will learn to laugh, yet never forget how to weep. One who will reach into the future, yet never forget the past. And after all these are his, add, I pray, enough of a sense of humor so that he may always be serious, yet never take himself too seriously; a touch of humility, so that he may always remember the simplicity of true greatness; the open mind of true wisdom; the meekness of true strength. Then I, his father, will dare in the sacred recesses of my own heart to whisper, 'I have not lived in vain.' Amen!"—La Plata Home Press.

40 TRIPS TO BIG CHICAGO 4-H EVENT ARE OFFERED GIRLS FOR BEST RECORDS

Forty prize educational trips to the 13th National Club Congress in Chicago next November, several hundred gold medals and a grand prize of a $400 cash scholarship are again offered in the National 4-H Club Girls' Record Contest just announced by the National Committee on Boys' and Girls' Club Work.

Club girls of this county and State are eligible to compete in this great annual affair for which Montgomery Ward provides the prizes and entertains the girls while in Chicago. State and County Club leaders will aid in conducting the contest and selecting winners.

The prizes are awarded for the best records in any one or more home projects, and are given to interest rural girls in 4-H training to prepare them better for useful lives.

Thousands of girls in nearly every State in the union have become interested in improving their heads, hearts, hands and health—the aim of 4-H—by this contest. Typical of the fine, capable young womanhood growing out of this friendly competition is the record of Hulda Stettler of Wisconsin who won the $400 scholarship last year and plans to use it at the State agricultural college this fall.

The girls' certified record showed that in 8 years she made 72 articles of home use and wear, baked 750 dishes of food, and canned 3658 pints of fruit, vegetables and meats. Prizes which she won in County, State and National exhibitions and contests together with the value of the products totaled nearly $1,500.

Club girls should apply to their local leaders or the county extension agent for rules and entry blanks of this contest.

It would be a miracle a year from now—but Warner Bros. sweep ahead of the parade again.—Sunday and Monday at Malone Theatre.

New Madrid County Superintendent's News

By Milus R. Davis

We note that we are to receive 14 1/2% of our State aid this month which is better than the anticipated 10%. Last September we received 15% and this payment will bring the total up to 29 1/2% for this school year.

Some more good news. Next year it is expected that we shall get 50% of the State aid due us which will be still better than the 29 1/2% that we are receiving this year.

This increase will be due to larger State revenues. Thanks to our Governor for holding the Senate's feet to the fire. Otherwise, we would face another embarrassing year.

If 50% of the State is paid next year our schools will be in a fairly good position. Of course, we would like to see the State aid paid in full so we could cut our local property tax.

On March 5 we sent in requisitions for Federal Aid for 16 rural districts. Several consolidated schools are also asking for Federal Aid. This government aid will be used to finish the full year term of school in districts that would otherwise be forced to close school or ask the teacher to finish on credit.

As soon as this government aid is approved, we shall give a list of the districts and the amount allowed each one.

The Fourth Quarterly Examination Questions have been received.

Chevrolet Produced More Cars In February Than Any Other Company

The published reports are as follows:

CHEVROLET	72,273
Second Car	59,337
Third Car	34,709

- During the first week of March Chevrolet produced 18,225 units.
- Chevrolet expects to produce in excess of 100,000 cars in March, 80% being passenger cars.
- The 1934 Chevrolet is an entirely new car embodying all the latest features. Had we merely modified our 1933 product we could have attained volume production at an earlier date.
- Competitive Dealers can make immediate delivery, even though they produce less volume than Chevrolet. We are grateful to the Public for the demand that makes even our larger production inadequate.
- We are allotting our cars to each Dealer on as fair and equitable a basis as possible. There will be no partiality shown to any section, for that would entail a sacrifice elsewhere.

We have received and delivered 10 new 1934 Chevrolets since March 1st. We thank you for waiting and the New Chevrolet will reward your patience.

A HUMAN INTEREST STORY

J. S. McConnell to F. E. Mount

Carlo was a stump tailed dog. He was born that way. I mean he was born a dog and with a stump tail. In the usual course of events he should have been named Bob, but he was not. He was given to me by Frank Mount. Frank Mount and I were about the same age and size, both being of eleven summers and winters at the time. We are older now.

I was at home then about three hundred yards from the Crossroads Schoolhouse. Frank lived a mile away. We both went to that school during the winter months and during the summer made regular hands on our father's farms. At all times on Saturday nights either I stayed with

Frank or he stayed with me and Sunday we were constant companions in numerous and sundry activities either in his neighborhood or mine.

He had two dogs. I had none, but there was a dog at my home my father claimed. He was a family dog of no use except to mind father's horse and chase rabbits.

bits. I craved a dog of my own.

One of Frank's dogs was named Kate and the other was named Ring. Kate was a shepherd of the half breed, coal black with a white spot on her breast and just enough white on her feet, belly and face to give tone to her appearance—she was a trim, neat appearing dog neither large nor small. Ring was a ring necked dog as his name implies. His paternal ancestor was a mixture of common dog and bulldog, perhaps, a quarter or half bulldog. I know nothing of his mother.

There was a tyrod in Frank's dog family. The family increased by six. That was too many dogs for Frank's father and mother. He offered me my choice. Just one had a stump tail. I picked him when he was just a day old, but we kept it a profound secret. I knew my family would balk at another dog. Startegy was imperative lest I "get told" in advance not to bring another dog on the place. We had to let Frank's mother in on it. All of Ring's and Kate's babies were condemned to be drowned, but Mrs. Mount consented to a pardon for the one and only tump tailed puppy and also joined our conspiracy. It was a fierce ordeal for Frank and me, but we had to do it. The other five puppies were executed in the following manner: one end of a cord tied to the neck of each, a rock to the other and puppies, rock and cord all pitched in to a deep hole in the spring branch. We pitched them in with our eyes shut and cotton stuffed in our ears, and then ran away at full speed. We had waded and played on this spring branch for years before, but never thereafter. It was to us a place apart.

Mr. Mount started a "rookus" about the "little old pup" we had not drowned, but Mrs. Mount silenced him as friend wife does. We never knew what she told him. Kate was sad and angry looking for a day or two but finally centered all her love and attention on the "little old pup". That is all the name he had then. In nine days his eyes were open. In three weeks he could lap milk out of a saucer and run about the dog house in and out. He gained education rapidly. The old rooster and hen with chickens were well known to him and at sight of either he instinctively sought a safe retreat.

Getting him home and getting permission for him to stay absorbed all my working hours and I dreamed of it at night. Frank and I discussed and planned on how we would do it. We could not think or talk about anything else. Finally I hit upon the idea of naming him Carlo. Some six years before I had owned a shepherd dog named Carlo. This dog had assisted in finding me and Elmer Hartman when we were lost six years before. In my family he was credited with saving my life, but that is another story. That Carlo had already had a decent burial. It occurred to me that the magic of the name of Carlo would at least enlist my mother to assist in saving this one. It was a capital idea but all capital ideas do not always work.

I went over to Frank's house

late Saturday afternoon, my chores being finished, and Frank came home with me to "stay all night". I carried Carlo until just before we got to "my house". Then Frank took him. We did not want to break the news too suddenly. He was introduced as Carlo just as if Frank had named him and would under no circumstances part with him. As Frank's dog, he had the run of the place, but Frank and I kept our eyes on him. He was not house broke and we did not want him to get into disgrace. My folks, all but my father, thought he was the "cutest thing" they ever saw. My father was suspicious from the start. You see he had been a boy once. Carlo drank some milk and spilled more and we had to put him to bed in the barn. We knew he would cry all night and that kept us from sleeping for a time. I awoke in the night and Frank and I got up and went out to the barn and made the old cow get up and give him a mid-night meal. My mother complained the next morning that the cow gave nothing but strippings out of one teat.

Frank did not stay all day as had been the custom. He left early in the morning and "forgot" to take Carlo with him. You see, that was a part of the plan. The absence of Carlo was soon discovered. My mother put two and two together and called the turn on her milk. I knew defeat or victory was near at hand. I met it boldly and prepared to have it out. My mother said: "You are not going to have that nasty pup here". That was the signal for the girls, my sisters, to chime in. It had always seemed to me that sisters could invent more ways to interfere with boys than anybody else. I stood my grounds holding Carlo in my arms, and a battle royal was well approaching. My father looked up from his Globe-Democrat and said: "What's up here? What's up here?" When told, he quietly said: "Ah, let him alone; let him have it", and turned back to his Globe-Democrat. I think the Globe-Democrat helped settle it and from then on Carlo was mine. No one dared further dispute his rights on the premises. Carlo paid his debt of gratitude to my father three years afterward, when an angry bull rushed upon his saddle horn, father was a country doctor. Just before the bull gored the horse, Carlo hung him by the nose and Mr. Bull forgot all about the horse and everything else but Carlo. No bull was too big for Carlo to entertain.

Carlo grew to be a large and powerful little dog. He was colored like Ring and Kate both, but all his instincts, except fighting, were Kate's. He fought like Ring. That is, he knew no master and as to fear, he never experienced it.

Carlo was my dog. I was his man. For six years he was my constant companion. I taught him everything I knew, and he learned it readily. He often knew my desires before I did myself. I could tell him to "heel" or "catch" and he would do it. I could send him for miles into the woods after the cows. He would obey my every command. He was my body guard. Nothing could harm me. When I went to school he carried my books by a strap to the door and then returned home, but when school was out, he was there. He knew the time to the minute, and never missed. His life and mine were all in one. He did much of my work, carried in wood, went to market and kept off the calf while I milked. Most anything I did, he could do. He knew the difference between play and fighting. Play was never molested, but a fight, he stopped it, and without injury to my opponent, but he stopped it.

I saw Carlo the last time on April 4th, 1892. I never will forget the picture. My folks moved from Simpson, Ill., on that date. I have no idea why I did it. I gave Carlo to Will Martin, my sister's husband, and left him there. We moved to the Indian Territory. In the excitement of leaving friends and relatives, Carlo was forgotten. I got onto the last car as the train pulled out to take my last look at the village, friends and relatives being left behind. I saw but one picture. That was Carlo standing on the depot platform, broad side to me with his head turned just enough to see me leaving him forever. I almost jumped off the train then running at full speed. I had all the pride and conceit of a 17-year-old, but the tears came anyway. I was heart broken. Carlo was too, when I did not return in a day or two. He would have nothing to do with anyone else, and in a short while became ill natured, mean and vicious, to such an extent that it was dangerous for anyone to approach him, and Will Martin had to shoot him in self defense. Carlo deserved a better fate from me. I have never owned another dog.

I was meaner than Carlo. I threw off my grief. He could not and perished. It is said that they have a second childhood. They must also have a second youth. I am approaching 60. Carlo's spirit has returned to me as evidence of a second youth. I am craving another Carlo.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
When Johnny McCloud, the only detective on the island, was called to a case, he found George Perry, an employee of a recently robbed firm and who has been tried by the police as not having anything to do with the crime, he finds that Lola Parker, the torch singer he loves, is in love with Perry. Perry thinks that Johnny has the "goods" on him and confesses to Lola that he was implicated in the robbery and that he did it so that they would have sufficient money to get married on. Lola pleads with Johnny to free Perry, telling him why he committed the crime. Johnny, who up until this time has not been certain of his grounds, listens calmly while Lola passionately weaves a net around the man she loves. When Lola finishes her recital, Johnny tells her that he is sending Perry up to Sing Sing for ten years.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

On the train that took McCloud and Perry to Sing Sing, rode Lola. She had kept an eye on the train, although they were totally unaware of her presence. The girl purchased a magazine, looked through it, handed it back in exchange for another, and at the same time suggested that McCloud and Perry might like it. The butcher went over to them and Perry purchased the book that Lola returned. His fingers had got the feel of a file through the pages.

McCloud leaned back and closed his eyes as though he intended to take a nap. "I hope there's a nice, long serial in that magazine—cause you'll have plenty of time to read it."

"That's a sweet thought. I appreciate it."

Just then Lola passed by them. McCloud noticed her and asked her

The train had started slowly. McCloud had lost his prisoner, but it was some minutes before he discovered it.

A few days later every police station had a picture of George posted with the caption: "Wanted for Robbery."

"Why don't you stick Lola's mug up there alongside of George's?" O'Neill inquired.

"Cause she hasn't done anything wrong," McCloud replied.

O'Neill registered disgust and spoke with elaborate sarcasm. "I suppose helping a criminal to escape is just high girlish spirits, huh? No kidding, Johnny—I can just hear the hardening of your arteries as I stand here. Lettin' Perry give you the slip was bad enough, but what did you want to let her get away for?"

"Cause I can't go fishing without bait," McCloud became grim. "I'll find her. And when I find her I'll find him. Then I'll send him back to prison, and I'll marry her."

McCloud turned on his heel and left the room. A hunch had come to him that Lola might go to the musty store which she got all her orchestrations. Anyway, he was determined to run down the idea. It was no go, however, for she had not been there. McCloud asked the owner to inform him if she should call, and left. Then he went to the post office and showed her picture to the special cop.

"If she should come to the General Delivery window for mail, grab her an' get right in touch with me," McCloud instructed the man. Then he went over to interview Lola's landlady. The girl had not been there either. Like the others to sit down, but she professed to be too nervous. George gave Lola an almost imperceptible nod, meaning, "O. K., kid, I've got the file."

In this way George was just as much of a prisoner as he would have been fastened to McCloud.

"There'll be visiting days twice a month," McCloud suggested. "Any time you want to come up to see George, I'll be glad to take you up."

"That's great," Perry exclaimed. "You know—now that it's all over and I'm facing it, it don't seem as tough. If you're in the right spirit, five years can pass like five minutes."

Lola stopped and looked at her wrist watch. The conductor stuck his head in the door. "Next stop is Harmon."

"Well, I think I'll be running along to my own back yard," Lola declared as she started off. George turned over a couple of pages of his magazine, pretending to read.

McCloud again resumed his half-reclining position, but this time, he did not close his eyes. Instead, he dug down into his pocket and drew out the diamond ring and looked at it. His reverie was interrupted by a drunken man, who was annoying Lola. The detective was alert. He started up, discovered that he was handcuffed to Perry. "Excuse me a minute," McCloud went out the key from his pocket and unlocked the handcuffs. "I'll be right back."

"Sure you will," McCloud took the section of the handcuff that he had opened and fastened it to a part of the brass tubing sticking out from the end of the seat. In this way, George was just as much of a prisoner as he would have been fastened to McCloud.

The detective rushed into Lola's seat, grabbed the drunken man by the collar and shoved him out the door. Then he sat down to chat with Lola.

"What's the reason you're putting George in prison?" She inquired as the train stopped at Harmon.

"I don't get you."

"Is it because you're a cop and he's a thief—or is it just because you're a man and I'm a woman?"

"That's a pretty hard question, Lola. I don't know whether I can answer it or not—but it's something like this. If you didn't exist, I'd still stick George behind the bars because that's where he belongs; and if George didn't exist I'd still chase after you, because that's where I belong—and if you add that up, you get a rough idea of where I stand."

Lola was giving quick, furtive glances out the window. "I know just what you must think of me after what I said and did."

"I haven't changed my opinion of you. I never will."

Lola covered her hand with hers. She was deliberately stalling. "No matter what I do?"

"No matter what you do."

She looked out of the window and saw something that caused her face to light with joy. McCloud did not catch the change of expression as her head was turned away at the moment. She had seen George leaving the train and was exultant in her triumph.

"Even if I wait for George?" she inquired.

"Sure," McCloud grinned. "You wait for George and I'll wait for you."

The producers of "Footlight Parade" with the world's Kings of Entertainment, a fabulous

"I've known you ever since you got on the force, Johnny. I picked you up fifteen years ago when you were pounding a beat in Canarsie with the goats. I brought you downtown and put you in plain clothes, an' you made a reputation for yourself. You sloughed your way up with those fists of yours till you got to be the best man I had."

Christie spoke with vicious emphasis. "And then, all of a sudden, you blow up on me. Right now you aren't worth as much as the greenest rookie. You've caved in. I can stand anything but sol-diering on the job."

McCloud answered quietly. "That isn't true, Lieutenant. I've been on police duty all the time."

Christie became savage. "I've asked you twice to forget about it. It's getting to be a joke around here—and you're getting to be a joke, too. Even the papers have taken it up. There's a fellow in one of the papers runs a box for His Man! He's making a sucker out of you and out of the department. He's keeping tabs on you like a box score—day by day man. McCloud, I'm asking you to forget that case."

"Lieutenant, I can't forget about it. I never let a guy get away from me before, and I'm not going to begin now."

With rising anger, Christie threatened. "I order you to drop it."

Mrs. Alford Bryant had charge of the first hour's program, Mrs. F. Dyer the second, Mrs. Ralph Vaughn the third, Mrs. Harris Foster the fourth and Mrs. C. D. Cummins the last. An offering was made for Home Missions at the conclusion.

A study course for the B. Y. P. U. organization of the Baptist church will be held at the church the third week in March beginning Monday night, March 19. Robert Foster is director.

McCloud asked the landlady to get in touch with him if she should hear from the girl.

In the highway, George and Lola were planning to leave the country. A phone call had informed them that a freighter was leaving Pier 15 that night.

"The freighter's bound for Bermuda," George was elated. "I'll be aboard her when she sails." Lola face fell. George reached forward and took her in his arms. "I've got a good job out there—old friend of the family fixed it for me. We're leaving right away—we won't need any passports or anything—and it'll be fun going on the freighter."

"I'd go in a rowboat to get away from here," Lola declared.

"It'll be another world, Lola—we can start all over again."

She looked at him intently. "Clean?"

"Clean." George took her by the hand and led her over to a divan. He sat down with Lola on his knee and pulled her head down on his chest. "Ever been in Bermuda, honey? It'll be the thrill of your life. Seventy-two hours on a boat, and when you get up the third morning you see a speck on the ocean—that's Bermuda—it'll be like a living garden."

"With nothing to worry about. No troubling every time there's a knock on the door; no dying when the phone rings; no living like a hunted animal; no—"

She paused as though unwilling to continue, but he finished for her, a vicious spiteful look coming into his face.

"No McCloud!"

As the days passed McCloud was given other orders. He was instructed to get busy rounding up a gang of wire tappers that had blown in from Chicago, but his heart was bent upon finding Lola and he neglected it. As a result, McCloud received a call from Christie.

Washington Comment

The recommendation of the President that the principal as well as the interest be guaranteed by the government under the Home Owners' Loan law is worthy of consideration for at least two reasons. In the first place, those who hesitated to accept unguaranteed securities in exchange for mortgages, will have less to fear, and conversions will occur on a far larger scale than heretofore and with less opposition from persons having funds invested in mortgages. Second, it cannot be denied that the offering of securities in which the interest alone was guaranteed, tended to cast a stigma upon the whole mass of government paper. With the principal of the Home Owners' Loan bonds guaranteed, the phrase "as good as a government bond" will take on much of its old-time significance, and confidence in government bonds of all sorts will be strengthened.

It is said that another change in the personnel of the President's cabinet is contemplated, the Attorney General being transferred to the post of Governor of the Philippines. By the suggested change, the Attorney General will lose his chance to become President by succession. If the President, the Vice-President, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Secretary of War were removed by death, the Attorney General would occupy the White House. The Attorney General, of course, does not covet the place of the Chief Executive thru any such calamity as that, and no doubt will take his place on the islands without giving a thought to the fact that so far as the next three years are concerned, his chance for sitting in the White House has departed.

According to rumor, an American has offered to buy himself a job as king of a small European County. If the report has anything behind it, truth indeed is stranger than fiction and one should be slow in condemning motion picture plots as based on an improbability. A Nazi speaker in Germany thrills his hearers by declaring that "The worst is behind us". It is not possible to put ones O. K. on all that the Chancellor of the Fatherland has done, but perhaps many of us in the United States can profitably turn Hitlerite to the extent of feeling and saying that the deepest and swiftest waters have been crossed.

Legalized liquor made a quiet entry into Washington the first of March. Stocks were short, but were soon re-enforced by ample supplies from without the boundaries of the District of Columbia. Business was good, there was a considerable amount of fire-water consumed, and arrests for intoxication were above normal. Window displays attracted attention and were looked at much as one regards the curiosities in a museum. Four per cent beer came without the calamity that was feared by the dregs, and without creating the Utopia that was hoped for by the wets. It is to be hoped that stronger potions may follow the same course. It may be that during the dry period, the public has outgrown heavy drinking, as it has outgrown lesser vices, snuff-taking for instance. It will be a year or two before the effect of the return of drink can be determined accurately.

The memorial to the most considerate man should be erected in the State of New York. A burglar operating there collected what he wanted and then had a lunch from the ice box, carefully spreading newspapers over the polished table from which he ate, and placing the dishes upon them.

Scientists are claiming that smoking is not so bad after all, Navy wife (to Chinese man-servant). After this when you enter my bedroom please knock, I might be dressing.

HARRY C. BLANTON
U. S. ATTORNEY

Harry C. Blanton, of Skeston, and publisher of The Skeston Mo., a son of C. L. Blanton, editor Standard, has been appointed U. S. District Attorney for the Eastern District of Missouri, with headquarters in St. Louis.

Harry Blanton comes from a distinguished Missouri family. His grandfather was prominent in newspaper circles, as are two of his uncles and his father. Other members of the family have attained prominence in business and professional circles.

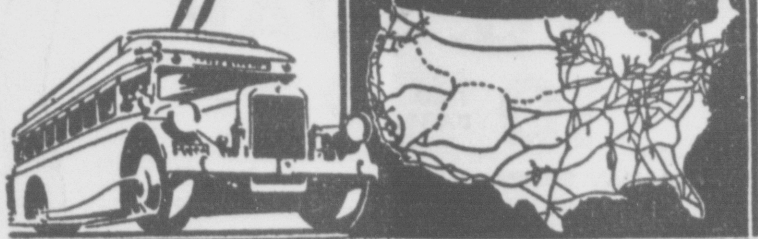

The writer knew Harry when he first came to Skeston to practice his profession fresh from law school in Washington. By diligence, intelligence and rugged honesty he soon made a name for himself as one of Missouri's most promising younger citizens and in the short space of twenty years, he has become one of the most highly respected members of the legal fraternity in a State famous for its outstanding lawyers.

Harry has richly earned preferment at the hands of his party and the people of his State. He is one public official whose garments will never become stained with the slightest taint of suspicion. If all government appointees were of the same stripe the Roosevelt administration would go down in history as the most honorable and cleanest in all our nation's history.

Good luck to you, Harry. We confidently expect your administration to lead to further and higher honors in the years to come.—Osceola (Ark.) Times.

SENIOR CLASS RINGS FROM HOME JEWELER

According to The Skeston (Mo.) Standard the senior class in Skeston high school purchased their class rings from a Skeston jeweler.

Thirty-one of the rings were delivered and they are reported as being very pretty.

The idea of buying class rings from a local dealer is most commendable. Now if the graduates order their commencement programs from a Skeston printing plant, things will be "just lovely".

In most commodities home newspapers are overlooked when time comes to order programs and rings even though better service and lower prices are offered.—Osceola (Ark.) Times.

18 CEDARS OF LEBANON TO BE GIFT TO ROOSEVELT

New York, March 10.—Eighteen cedars of Lebanon which are being shipped from Beirut to President Roosevelt are symbolic of life and growth to the people of Lebanon. Barclay Acheson, secretary of the Near-East Foundation, explained today.

The trees are an expression of gratitude for what the American people have done for the people of the Near East, he said.

Three groups are making the gift. They are the Armenian Church, the Near-East League, composed of former inmates of orphanages supported in Syria by Americans, and the Near-East Brotherhood, composed of students

Last Saturday and Sunday while most of us were hovering around warm fires, the members of the maintenance department of the State Highway Department were hard at work clearing the highways of snow and sleet in order that traffic would not be slowed down despite the heavy precipitations the week-end. The result was that the State roads were pretty well cleared within a short while after the sleet had stopped falling, and many an accident was averted thru the work of the members of this division of the highway department. It necessitated quite a bit of work, not to mention considerable discomfort on the part of the highway workers, many of whom were forced to work all night dragging the highways, but motorists on the highways reaped the benefits of this work. There are some jobs in the Highway Department that look like snaps, but the job of keeping the highways open during a time like last week is not one of them. The maintenance department in this Division did a

They serve as a screen for whatever is behind and also as a background for the shrubs and flowers in front of them. Some of the early bloomers, such as lilacs, forsythias, pussy willow, bush honeysuckle and sweet-scented mockorange should be included in the background plantings.

REWARD PAID FOR CONVICTION OF THIEF

A $50 reward has been paid by the Missouri Ruralist Protective Service for the arrest and conviction of John E. Frazier, who stole a watch and $13 in money from the posted premises of Hugh Hobbs, Route 1, Illmo. Frazier was given a penitentiary sentence of two years for burglary and two years for larceny. At the suggestion of Service Member Hobbs, the reward was divided equally between him and Sheriff Joseph Anderson, Scott County, who made the arrest. One important factor in the conviction was Mr. Hobbs' ability to identify the watch because of markings previously placed on it.

Since the Missouri Ruralist Protective Service began operation in June, 1927, rewards amounting to $22,200 have been paid for the conviction of 809 thieves found guilty of stealing from Missouri farmers, whose premises are posted with Protective Service signs.

It is believed the new system now being used by the Protective Service, for marking practically all farm property for identification to ease of theft will go a long way toward curbing thefts from farmers in the future.

PRESENTDAY MAYAS RETAIN ANCIENT SKILL

Washington, March 14.—The so-called "lost" civilization of the Mayas, whose mighty stone cities have been abandoned for 500 years in the jungles of Central America, is very much alive in the mountains of Guatemala.

New evidence that the once all-conquering Maya race is far from extinct has come to the Smithsonian Institution in the form of a collection of jewelry, fabrics and other works of art made by the Mayas of today almost exactly as they were made five centuries ago at the height of the prehistoric empire's glory.

The Mayas were coastwise traders in the Caribbean Sea when Columbus discovered America. On his fourth voyage Columbus met one of their trading ships off the Honduran coast, loaded with woven, embroidered cotton textiles much like those in the Smithsonian collection. The meeting, however, only served to confirm the discovery of a long forgotten, their art work has deteriorated little, if at all, since the days of their greatness. In the collection of modern Maya art there is gold filigree work that would do credit to the finest European goldsmiths of any age, well-executed silver ornaments, baskets and other objects.

That Mayas still weave cotton fabrics on the old style hand looms with beautiful intermixtures of colors in elaborate designs. Their yarns are dyed in the method of their ancestors with vegetable dyes. The design of the Quetzal, sacred bird of Guatemala, frequently is used.

Strangely enough, the present-

day Mayas are of little or no help to archeologists who have been trying for many years to piece together the story of their past. Many ruined Maya cities in the jungles of Guatemala and Yucatan have been explored, cleared of debris and partly restored, but the Mayas of today can give little or no aid in deciphering the hieroglyphics sculptured on the monuments.

Although this phase of their civilization has been forgotten, their art work has deteriorated little, if at all, since the days of their greatness. In the collection of modern Maya art there is gold filigree work that would do credit to the finest European goldsmiths of any age, well-executed silver ornaments, baskets and other objects.
